

The Economics Student Association

Membership Form

The Economics Student Association is a setting for a variety of professional and recreational activities for students and faculty. One of the major functions of the club is to work with the faculty to bring guest speakers and distinguished scholars to the campus. In addition, the club is instrumental in planning annual picnics, intramural, and other social items.

The primary objectives of the Economics Student Association are to (1) bring together students that are interested in Economics, (2) to increase the interaction between students and the Radford University Economics Department faculty, and (3) to promote an understanding and appreciation by the Radford academic community of the nature of economic issues.

Membership in the Economics Student Association includes students who major or minor in economics as well as students who are simply interested in economic issues. Annual membership dues are $10. Membership term is the beginning of Fall to the end of Summer II. Membership dues can be waived in the case of proof of financial hardship.

To join the Economics Student Association, return this form with $10 (cash only) to the Department of Economics in Davis Hall, Room 145.
